

REVERSING THE “SANDS OF TIME”!?!?©

Gosh, wouldn't it be a true blessing if we could all turn this hour glass over and let the “sands of our lives” flow in an entirely different manner! I think it's a universal human thought - especially amongst mature adults - that as we age, we think about this and conclude that: “If we had the chance to do it all over again, many things would have been done much differently!” Of course what we have done in our lives – be it good, bad, ugly, or indifferent - is mostly cast in permanent concrete and cannot now be easily reversed, but certainly we have the ability to keep on trying and just who would not want another chance to reverse the unpleasant eventualities that have occurred! Unfortunately, even if given another chance, there are no guarantees for success!

Certainly it is recognized and must be accepted that errant actions by many that have led to hurt feelings and consequently, anger, extended estrangements or feelings of desertion in families, may not be rectifiable by anyone in a lifetime and that is a sad state of affairs!

It's extremely important to accept the fact that “to err in many walks of life is to be human” and it's hard to conceive that anyone on the earth today and some who are no longer with us, have not made a few mistakes along life's way.

Oh yes, it would be a true blessing if we could all turn our own “lives' hourglasses” around and have the “sands of our lives” flow in only a positive manner!?! One must always imagine that such miracles can happen - and never give up trying!
